Hanuman Singh having died before the preliminaries needed for decding his retirement could be got ready, he should be considered as having died "before actually retiring" within the meaning of Rl-510 of the Mysore Service Regulations. It is more than doubtful whether his heirs can legally claim gratuity. The Comptroller may be consulted unofficially, if need be.

The Comptr may be asked whether a Govt official in superior service who, while on leave, applies for retirement, but dies before his application is sanctioned by Govt, falls under Article 510, or whether his heirs can claim the gratuity to which he would, if living, have been entitled. There is a precedent in favour of the latter; but this can be considered after the Comptr's opinion is received.

Article 510 of the Mysore Service Regulations excludes the claim in question, as opined by the Comptroller. The absence of any "special circumstances" precludes the application of Article 480 to this case. The precedent referred to seems to have been decided under Art 324; while this article clearly presupposes that the claim itself is admissible under the provisions of the Service Regulations. The present claim is inadmissible under Art. 510 and does not fall within article 480. The claim may be rejected.

Secy through Dy. Secy

I myself think that there are no "special circumstances" entitling the deceased's case to favourable consideration. His service Register shows that he was removed from BS to BS6 in 1888, & fined on several occasions. Some uniform course must, however, I think, be adopted in dealing with such cases. The case of Anthony (dealt with in fo. 3836 of 1902-03) was, in its essential features, not different from that of Hanumanthiya. The former died within 5 days of his application for retirement; and the Govt. dispensed with the production of the medical certificate required by Article 293. The date of his death was treated as the date of termination of service, whereas, ordinarily, service only terminates after the date of the medical certificate (cf. Article 303). The effect of the order of dismissal was therefore to take Anthonyswamy's case out of the operation of Article 510, by treating him (with retrospective effect) as having been discharged at the time of his death.

I am not sure if it is Article 480 that allows of any particular case being dealt with specially. This, however, is not very material, since there can be no doubt whatever about the right of Government to grant an exemption from the provisions of a particular rule in favour of a particular officer.

On the whole I am of opinion that Anthonyswamy's case is a precedent in point. Whether it should be applied in the ~~case~~ provisional case of Hanumandas is a point on which I have no particular view to express, ~~but~~ and I would leave it to the Secretary's pleasure.

Received by me to-day.

The only defect in this case is that the man who asked for retirement & who was on leave at the time died before he could appear before a medical Officer as per docket prescribed & signed. If the medical certificate had been obtained he would have become entitled to gratuity. This want may, I think, be condoned & gratuity sanctioned,
